HOT THANGS

What is it? mylifeorganised.co.za, which helps you execute all your grand Christmas plans. My Life Organised is in the business of lifestyle management and this includes:

- Sourcing and buying gifts
- Wrapping and delivering gifts
- Planning Christmas menus
- Facilitating any party planning during the holidays
- Researching holiday plans and making bookings on your behalf

My Life Organised charges an hourly rate and bills from the time the task is started to when it is completed. So, depending on the type of task, expect to pay between R180 and R350 per hour.

Why should you care? If last year's Christmas horrors are still fresh in your mind, you won't need any convincing.

Who'll dig it? People who are always on the lookout for the most expedient way of conquering their to-do list.

X-factor? My Life Organised has tailor-made monthly packages, so you can keep using their services after the Silly Season. It even offers a free one-hour consultation on which packages would best suit your lifestyle.

This Week's Must-do

Favourite part? If, by now, you're wondering who these people's clients are, cast your eye over their website. Gaby says: "I'd never thought of outsourcing aspects of my personal life but, after a hectic provincial move, the last thing I felt like was dealing with a backlog of personal admin." Yes, My Life Organised offers to vanquish the admin beast too.

What might make you think twice? For some, this service would squash the spirit of Christmas — choosing and buying gifts yourself. And, petrol costs are extra to quote. — Ziphezinhle Msimango

WORD ON THE STREET

SARGASM: Deriving too much satisfaction from sarcastic criticism. "Oh, thanks a lot for drinking my last beer! No, really. If I wanted it for myself, I shouldn't have put it in the fridge!" Source: urbandictionary.com
